

Satnews Daily

SSPI Looks To Future Leaders With Awards

The Society of Satellite Professionals International (SSPI) has selected David Cavossa, Vice President, SATCOM, Arrowhead Global Solutions; Nick Mitsis, Manager, Corporate Communications, Intelsat, and Yvette Dominguez, Manager, Payload Design Section, Space Systems/Loral to be honored with “Promise Awards” which recognize young leaders in the satellite communications industry.

Dick Tauber, Vice President, Transmission Systems and New Technology for the CNN News Group, was selected as SSPI’s “Mentor Award” recipient, honoring his years of contributions to the industry nurturing and mentoring rising young professionals. SSPI’s 3rd annual Future Leaders Dinner was held on October 14, at The 3 West Club in Manhattan. A portion of the proceeds from the banquet and awards ceremony went to SSPI’s educational fund for scholarship and intern grants for students aiming for careers in the satellite industry. The SSPI Future Leaders Dinner serves as the social networking event which anchors “Satellite Week NYC,” when a range of industry events and conferences are scheduled throughout the week.

David Cavossa, Arrowhead (Promise Awardee)
Clay Mowry, Arianespace (Dinner Sponsor)
Nick Mitsis, Intelsat (Promise Awardee)
Dianne Van Beber, Intelsat (Dinner Sponsor)
Arnold Friedman, Space Systems/Loral (Dinner Sponsor)
Yvette Dominguez, Space Systems/Loral (Promise Awardee)
Ed Giovannini, Tandberg TV (Reception Sponsor)
Dick Tauber, CNN New Group (Mentor Awardee)